Doubt they would take an application without MCAT. The head of admissions is florence@bcm.tmc.edu

Dear Paul:

Thank you for your response. I was wondering if the admission would accept Rob to some kind of advance standing without MCAT. Who do we call? – or can you make a call?

Many thanks! and love to Mary

Alan

He should apply. I can send a supportive nite but the admission process is very isolated from me. Hope all is well.

Greetings from hot NYC. Perhaps you can help my son Rob, who graduated Brown and Tufts Dental School, and now wants to attend Med School. He is finishing a Dental Anesthesia residency at Stony Brook, the best such program in the nation. He wants now to do General Anesthesia and needs an MD degree. Any chance he can switch to Baylor, at any level, to get the MD? I can assure you he's very bright and one of the best anesthesia residents to have trained at Stony Brook. He can get rec's that say so. I can arrange to have his C-V sent to you for your review. He has never taken the MCAT.

Best regards,

Alan

Thanks Pat. He will let me know and you will see if he puts his application in. He is yet another person who just never considered Pathology as a career – the medical schools do a terrible job promoting pathology and I think many actually dissuade students from going into the field.

Just got an email from NRMP that we filled 6 of 8 positions. The 2 extra we added on this year apparently went unfilled. Scramble will start at 12 noon. Let me know if your cousin is definitely interested in switching to pathology. I will look up to see if his scramble application is in ERAS after it opens at 12 noon today.
